CAMP4 Therapeutics, Inc.

Third-Quarter Earnings; ASCEND Set for Year-End Dosing With CMP-002 Uniquely Positioned to Treat SYNGAP Haploinsufficiency

Our take: We view the third-quarter update as largely in line with expectations, with Camp4 continuing to execute toward the initiation of patient dosing in the ASCEND Phase I/II study of CMP-002 in SYNGAP1-related disorders by year-end 2026. Regulatory clearances in the United Kingdom and European Union add to clinical sites in Australia and Argentina, broadening the trial's geographical reach ahead of first patient dosing. We continue to view the first half 2028 top-line data readout from ASCEND as a major catalyst and binary event for shares, with the potential for intermediate safety and pharmacodynamic readouts prior to this. Beyond ASCEND, the R&D day held in late September provided useful context on the unmet need in SYNGAP1 and the trial design of ASCEND (see our note: Large Unmet Need in Syngap Heading Into Dosing of Global Phase I/II ASCEND Study; Data First Half 2028 If Not Earlier), and Camp4's disclosure of a new preclinical program in Phelan-McDermid syndrome targeting SHANK3 regulatory RNA adds further optionality to the company's emerging neurology franchise.

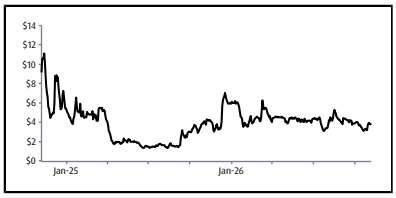

We continue to view CMP-002 as an intriguing disease-modifying approach for SYNGAP1-related disorder, where there are currently no approved disease-modifying therapies and the underlying genetic rationale for increasing SYNGAP1 expression is compelling. ASCEND represents the first meaningful test of the RNA Actuating Platform (RAP) in patients, and we see translation of increased SYNGAP1 protein into clinical activity as a major opportunity to validate CMP-002 and Camp4's broader RAP platform that is uniquely positioned to treat haploinsufficiency disorders. With cash of $124.5 million and runway through end of 2028, the company is well-funded through completion of the ASCEND study and we reiterate our Outperform rating.

The recipient of this report must make its own independent decisions regarding any securities or financial instruments mentioned herein.

What's new?

- ASCEND receives global regulatory clearances. Camp4 received authorization from the U.K.'s MHRA in September 2026 and from multiple EU regulators and ethics committees in October 2026, adding to prior clearances from Australia's TGA and Argentina's ANMAT. The ASCEND trial is now authorized across four major geographies and is expected to enroll at more than 11 clinical sites across 9 countries, which we view as supportive of enrollment timelines heading into first patient dosing by year-end 2026.

- ASCEND trial activities initiated. Camp4 confirmed it has initiated clinical trial activities across multiple sites and remains on track to dose the first patient in the ASCEND Phase I/II study of CMP-002 by year-end 2026.

What's next?

- CMP-002/SYNGAP: Dose first patient in the ASCEND Phase I/II study by year-end 2026, with top-line data expected in the first half of 2028 and potential for intermediate safety and pharmacodynamic readouts ahead of that.

- SHANK3/Phelan-McDermid syndrome: Nominate a development candidate for the SHANK3 program in 2027.

- CMP-001/UCD: Monitor for any update on a potential partner for the CMP-001 program.

Cash and runway: Cash and cash equivalents were $124.5 million as of September 30, 2026, compared to $109.5 million as of December 31, 2025, reflecting receipt of the $50.1 million second private placement tranche in August. Management expects current cash to fund planned activities through the end of 2028, through completion of ASCEND.

Valuation. Camp4 shares trade at a market cap valuation materially discounted to early-stage genetic medicine peers, despite the company's novel RAP platform. Camp4's foray into the CNS highlights the potential for the company's ASO-based therapeutic modality to target a number of indications, and we expect that further business development ventures will spur expansion of the company's pipeline into other tissues and pathologies as new nucleic acid delivery strategies continue to develop. Data from other players with RNA-based gene expression boosters, albeit with differentiated mechanisms of action, should help convince the Street that modest increases in gene expression can provide clinically relevant benefit.

Risks. Camp4's risk profile is similar to other early-stage biotechnology companies harnessing a novel biological mechanism as the basis for their platform and asset development. Specific to Camp4, we see regulatory risk, as regulators' reaction to genome-altering therapies has been tepid, and while Camp4's platform does not target the genome at the level of sequence perturbations, off-target effects of regRNA targeting may have variable, unintended effects on gene expression in other parts of the genome if the specificity of the RAP platform at the gene enhancer/repressor level is not maintained.

OTHER IMPORTANT DISCLOSURES

Stock ratings and valuation methodologies: William Blair & Company, L.L.C. uses a three-point system to rate stocks. Individual ratings reflect the expected performance of the stock relative to the broader market (generally the S&P 500, unless otherwise indicated) over the next 12 months. The assessment of expected performance is a function of near-, intermediate-, and long-term company fundamentals, industry outlook, confidence in earnings estimates, valuation (and our valuation methodology), and other factors. Outperform (O) - stock expected to outperform the broader market over the next 12 months; Market Perform (M) - stock expected to perform approximately in line with the broader market over the next 12 months; Underperform (U) - stock expected to underperform the broader market over the next 12 months; not rated (NR) - the stock is not currently rated. The valuation methodologies include (but are not limited to) price-to-earnings multiple (P/E), relative P/E (compared with the relevant market), P/E-to-growth-rate (PEG) ratio, market capitalization/revenue multiple, enterprise value/EBITDA ratio, discounted cash flow, and others. Stock ratings and valuation methodologies should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance.

The ratings and valuation methodologies reflect the opinion of the individual analyst and are subject to change at any time.
