CAMP4 Therapeutics Corporation (CAMP)

3Q26: Good Progress Towards SYNGAP1 First Patient Dosing By YE26

The Wedbush View

The 3Q26 update reported regulatory clearance in more geographic regions for the planned global ASCEND Ph1/2 study of CMP-002 in SYNGAP1-related disorder. CAMP4 reported initiation of clinical trial activities across multiple study sites, and first patient dosing remains on track for YE26. Discussion at the recent virtual Analyst Day highlighted the randomized, double-blind, controlled study to be "signal-seeking" without commitment to any preselected endpoints (note), and CAMP4 expects to report top-line data in 1H28. CAMP4 ended 3Q26 with total cash of $124.5M after receiving $50.1M in gross proceeds from closing the second tranche of a previously announced private placement. Management guides for a runway through YE28, which we believe could allow for the newly announced SHANK3 program for the treatment of Phelan-McDermid syndrome to potentially enter the clinic as well following candidate identification in 2027. Overall, we believe that CAMP4 is making good progress in building a pipeline that should support promising long-term growth potential of the company's proprietary RNA-based technology platform.

ASCEND Will Include Comprehensive Efficacy Measures. The study will evaluate three undisclosed doses, all within the therapeutic range according to management, and patients will be required to have refractory epilepsy, defined as daily seizures despite ≥1 ongoing anti-seizure medication (ASM), with stable ASM regimen at baseline, and prior trial of ≥2 ASMs, for study enrollment. For efficacy evaluation, ASCEND will include 24-hour video EEG to measure both seizure reduction and sleep improvement, and five validated scales will also be included to measure potential improvement in communication, motor function, behavior, and development. We note that such outcome measures are often used as primary endpoints in related disorders (e.g., Bayley-4, Vineland-3, and ORCA in Angelman Syndrome, ABC-2 in autism spectrum disorder, and GMFM in cerebral palsy, spinal muscular atrophy [SMA], and Down syndrome), so the outcomes from ASCEND should provide a rather comprehensive assessment of CMP-002 and show CMP-002's clinical benefit across various disease domains.
